Chris Dafoe, whose credits include "Silicon Valley" and its forthcoming prequel "The Great Always," will join the cast of FX's upcoming drama "Baskets," sources tell Variety. The comedy series from Adam McKay and Will Ferrell has been in development for the past few years, with McKay directing the pilot and executive producing alongside Ferrell and John C. Reilly. Based on a semi-autobiographical graphic novel of the same name, the show is described as a "furious look at how people and places in the small town of Bakersfield, California, are wrestling with love, loss, and neuroses within the context of a struggling family business." It is set to premiere in the fall of 2019 on FX. A&E has picked up "Baskets" for a 10-episode first season, with Dafoe joining a cast that includes Ferrell and Reilly. The sitcom will be produced by McKay's Gary Sanchez Productions, which will also produce the A&E comedy series "The Obsessed," starring Bruce Greenwood and Rose Byrne. The latter project was recently picked up to series, with production set to begin this fall. On the feature side, Dafoe's most recent credits include the Jim Jarmusch films "Dead Man's Shoes" and "Paterson," the second season of "Stranger Things," and the upcoming indie thriller "The Lighthouse." This invention relates to a battery with an improved material comprising negative electrodes and separators and, more particularly, to a material comprising negative electrodes and separators used in a non-aqueous electrolyte secondary battery, such as lithium-ion secondary battery. As a battery with a non-aqueous electrolyte, lithium ion secondary battery is well known, and has a high electromotive force and high energy density. The lithium ion secondary battery uses lithium (Li) as a positive electrode and a carbon material as a negative electrode. When charge and discharge are repeated, lithium in the positive electrode is transferred to the negative electrode. At this time, lithium is precipitated in a form of Li_2O_2 , LiOH , LiF or LiCl at the negative electrode, and electrolytic solution is decomposed on the positive electrode. The decomposition products are accumulated in the positive electrode. In the battery, lithium in the positive electrode, electrolytic solution and decomposition products of the electrolytic solution are repeatedly interchanged between the positive electrode and the negative electrode and finally consumed. For example, in a secondary battery of lithium/carbon, lithium and carbon react with each other to form Li_2CO_3 and Li_2O in the positive electrode. When lithium and the electrolytic solution are interchanged between the positive electrode and the negative electrode, carbon is eluted from the 2d92cc491b
