Keymacro is a simple tool, designed to help you create Macros. There are a lot of Web Related tasks that can be automated through the use of Macros. Create and edit web fonts Macros can be used to make things easier and faster by helping you manage and create a lot of details about web fonts. You can create web-fonts that are compatible with almost all the devices that are used to browse the Internet, by providing them with different graphic elements. You can customize their main characteristics, such as the colors, sizes, and weight, by adding new colors and/or using other fonts from the Macromedia.Font Library. Resize text and images Macros also provide you with the option of easily resizing all the selected web-fonts, by using the 'Scale' feature, that can be applied to their Text and Images elements. Find and correct web fonts With this tool, you can use a Macromedia.TypeLibrary to create a custom 'Find web fonts' based on the web fonts you have already selected. This way, you can find the fonts that are available on the Internet and store them in a list, which you can edit, with the sole click of a button. You can also find and correct the character errors in the selected fonts by using the character maps provided in the TypeLibrary. Selects, deletes and merges different parts of a page Macros can be used to automate the process of selecting, deleting and merging different parts of a web page. You can create the different parts of a page, without requiring you to type the different elements individually, by using the 'Edit' feature of the Macromedia.Shape Library. Once you have selected the desired parts, you can add the different elements to a list, then access them with a right-click in the design window of the browser. Search HTML code Macros can also be used to search through HTML code. Using the 'Search' feature, you can create a special text for searching and find any item in the HTML code, so that you can easily find the required element and change its style, either manually or using a Macromedia.Style Library. Flexible web page creation Macros can be used to create flexible web pages. They can be set up to automatically access the necessary data from a database, using a text file. You can also store and apply dynamic information to web pages.
